Private College in Kathmandu

Kathmandu School of Medical Science

Kathmandu University School of Medical Sciences (KUSMS) is a collaborative institution formed between Kathmandu University and Dhulikhel Hospital. It introduced its own MBBS program in August 2001. The School is equipped with modern infrastructure and facilities across two locations: the basic science building, which contains all essential resources, is located on a hilltop in Chaukot, Panauti, while the university hospital is situated just 3 km away in Dhulikhel. The basic science department comprises various units with the necessary laboratories, lecture halls—including problem-based learning (PBL) classrooms—audio-visual resources (media technology), and a library.
